High Yield Outperformed When Rates Rose

BOND RETURNS

In periods where interest rates rose more than 100 basis points, high yield bonds outperformed investment grade and government bonds.

Data as of 12/31/12 Rising rate environment periods from troughs to peak from October 1993 to February 2011.

The bonds represented in the above chart have varying price risk, which generally is higher for issuers that are more likely to default. U.S. Treasurys are backed by the U.S. government and have a very low probability of default. U.S. corporate investment grade bonds, represented by the BofA Merrill Lynch U.S. Corporate Master Index, are securities that have a higher probability of default than the U.S. government given the higher probability of corporate bankruptcy. High yield bonds, represented by the BofA Merrill Lynch U.S. High Yield Master II Index, are issued by corporate issuers that have lower credit ratings than investment-grade issuers and therefore are considered more likely to default.

RATES CAN RISE QUICKLY

While interest rates are at record lows for now, the bond market can turn surprisingly quickly if inflation starts to take hold, especially in this era of significant government intervention in the U.S. economy. Economic recovery also may spur higher rates.

HIGH YIELD BONDS HAVE OUTPERFORMED

Since 1993, high yield bonds have had positive returns, compared to investment-grade and government bonds, in every period when the 10-year Treasury yield has increased by more than 100 basis points (1 percentage point).

PREPARE YOUR BOND ALLOCATION

The Barclays U.S. Aggregate Bond Index holds approximately 80% of government and mortgage securities which are more negatively sensitive to rising rates. Selectively chosen high yield bonds may be a strong complement to investment-grade portfolios.

Bond credit quality allocation reflects the higher of the ratings of Standards & Poor's Corporation; Moody's Investors Service, Inc. or Fitch, Inc. Ratings are relative, subjective and not absolute standards of quality, represent the opinions of the independent, Nationally Recognized Statistical Rating Organizations (NRSRO), and are adjusted to the Standards & Poor's scale shown. Ratings are measured using a scale that typically ranges from AAA (highest) to D (lowest). In addition, CAL has assigned its own ranking to the "unrated bonds," based on its fundamental and proprietary investment process and has years of experience actively managing risk. The security's credit rating does not eliminate risk. The table excludes equity securities, cash and cash equivalents. For more information about securities ratings, please see the Fund's Statement of Additional Information at calamos.com.
